

TAGLINE OPTION 1:

GOOD PEOPLE FIGHTING FOR GOOD PEOPLE

GOOD PEOPLE FIGHTING FOR GOOD PEOPLE

There was a time in the not too distant past when being an attorney was considered a noble profession. It may sound like a punchline to a bad joke, but it's true, nonetheless.

For most of civilized history, lawyers were seen as life rafts. Safe places to cling to when things got turbulent. Now—and often rightly so—they're seen as gold-plated anchors. Expensive "assets" masquerading as agents of stability.

Apparently, someone decided that kindness and decency didn't scale well. Or that at least such traits were at odds with the glory and prestige of "success."

Well, we could not disagree more.

We believe it's possible to act with the ferocity of a warrior while still keeping true warrior principles intact. Principles that, much like those of the attorney, were once seen as signs of character rather than signals of weakness.

Principles like stopping trouble before it starts. Establishing harmony. Showing respect for the conflict by showing respect to its fighters.

The reality is, being a good warrior also means being a good person.

And to be a good attorney, especially fighting on behalf of a fellow human in crisis, also means being a good advocate. A role that, to us, starts with being a good person.

It is possible to be both aggressive and compassionate.

It is possible to disrupt convention and still succeed on merit.

It is possible to see advocacy as an act of kindness while still seeing the legal process as a genuine form of warfare.

Yes, we are tireless in fight, surgically precise in strategy, ferocious in execution.

But we will never shy away from the pride we feel by simply being good people.

TAGLINE OPTION 2:

BATTLE TESTED ADVOCACY

BATTLE TESTED ADVOCACY

The language of the courtroom is the language of war for a reason. Costello Law Firm's unrelenting, almost militant brand of advocacy was honed and perfected in battle.

We are smart and efficient in our strategy.

We are swift and decisive in our engagement.

We are agile and precise in our execution.

We are a veritable SEAL Team Six for crisis management. And after decades of courtroom warfare, it's safe to say our advocacy methods are officially battle tested and battle proven.

We are not some faceless General on a hill issuing orders to the warriors on the front line.

We are the warriors on the front line.

And unlike other law firms, we are changing the landscape of the battlefield.

We are:

CERTIFIED LGBT.

WOMEN-OWNED.

EFFICIENT. Determining needs quickly, constructing a streamlined plan, executing it all with zero waste.

PRECISE. Swooping into crisis, establishing calm, resolving cases quickly.

AGILE. Serving as an infantry to support larger in-house counsel or as our own small but mighty standalone army.

HONORABLE. Practicing kindness and decency in the face of a system that rarely does the same.

We are a David among Goliaths.

A slaughterhouse for sacred cows.

A force that won't be diminished, bullied or intimidated.

We are fierce advocates. Battle tested and battle proven.

TAGLINE OPTION 3:

FOR EVERY CRISIS, JUST RESULTS

FOR EVERY CRISIS, JUST RESULTS

Crisis Management is Costello Law Firm's superpower. A superpower forged from blue-collar grit and white-collar expertise. Born from the desire to disrupt. To upend the status quo. To get back to the original vision of what it once meant to be legal advocate. The old school days when attorneys were seen more as family members than hired guns.

Most law firms often act as a thermometer, raising the temperature to meet the heat of the room. Emotions run high, strategies become reactive, mistakes get made.

We prefer to act as a thermostat, setting the temperature of the room before ever stepping foot inside. Nerves are calmed, strategies are thoughtfully formulated, plans are drawn-up clearly and focused.

After decades of crisis management experience, we've found that most prospective clients come to us the same way: unsettled, unsure, anxious and lost.

They're intimidated both by lawyers themselves and by their own preconceived ideas of how the profession, process and system works.

They're not wrong. Such perceptions were not formed in a vacuum.

We get it. And it's precisely why we have been hell-bent on changing those perceptions since the day we opened our doors.

We listen to our clients, but we hear the human beings.

We hear their anxieties, their concerns, their confusion.

We see that forest of question marks hanging above their heads and we make it our mission to plow a clearing for them where they'll feel safe, heard and empowered.

We strategize with precision, treating their time and money as if it were our own.

We formulate a plan of attack, making sure it is clear and meticulously efficient.

We execute that plan, standing alongside them in the trenches until the last bit of smoke clears.

And we get them results.

Just results.

TAGLINE OPTION 4:

LEGAL EXPERTISE.
FEARLESS ADVOCACY.
HUMAN WISDOM.

LEGAL EXPERTISE. FEARLESS ADVOCACY. HUMAN WISDOM.

LEGAL EXPERTISE: Check. We are the Little Law Firm That Could. After over 35 years in the trenches, we've learned to think differently. Look at things differently. Track patterns and inefficiencies to help us strategize differently. All resulting in a creativity of thought that allows us to advocate for our clients with an almost proprietary brand of precision, efficiency and speed.

FEARLESS ADVOCACY: Check. We are attorneys who actually listen to our clients. Advocates assembled and guided by an East Coast badass born with a picket sign in her hand who never forgot her roots. A calming force in total chaos. Vigilant fiscal stewards of others' money. Empaths with rhino skin, dracula fangs and the bite force of a great white shark.

HUMAN WISDOM: Check. Strong women in a profession largely dominated by men of dubious character tend to be wiser, smarter and more thoughtful than others. Throw in a healthy dose of LGBT resilience and you've got advocates who probably understand struggle and pain at a level most people never will. Wisdom? Uh. Yeah. Maybe just a little.