

Dear [Name],

Costello Law Firm is proud to announce the expansion of its boutique litigation practice and welcome Wendy Harper and Nari Weaver. Costello Law Firm brings decades of trial, white collar, regulatory, and complex litigation experience, including parallel proceedings, commercial matters, and employment matters.

Wendy Harper joins Costello Law Firm as an experienced civil, regulatory, and criminal defense attorney and former prosecutor. She clerked for the Honorable D. Duff McKee in Boise, Idaho, served as a prosecutor in the Seattle City Attorney's Criminal Office, and has extensive trial experience and many years defending individuals in criminal matters. She also practiced at national law firms, where she represented companies in employment, regulatory, and liability matters. Most recently, Wendy worked with the Federal Civil Rights Clinic for more than a decade. Wendy's practice focuses on criminal defense, specifically serious state and federal charges, and civil investigations, as well as civil rights and employment matters, civil liability actions, and internal investigations.

Nari Weaver serves as Chief of Staff, leading firm operations, strategic initiatives, communications, and organizational development. With more than 15 years of experience spanning communications, marketing, program management, nonprofit leadership, and operations, Nari works closely with firm leadership to translate strategy into execution and strengthen the systems and infrastructure supporting the firm's attorneys, clients, and continued growth.

Together, Wendy and Nari strengthen both the legal operational and communication capabilities of Costello Law Firm as the firm continues to grow its boutique practice in white collar defense, professional licensing, regulatory matters, government enforcement, business and commercial disputes, intellectual property, and parallel proceedings.

The unique backgrounds, experience, and success our lawyers share as trial attorneys, regulatory attorneys, and complex litigators create a nimble team and bench uniquely qualified to handle white collar, government regulatory, investigative, litigation, complex commercial, and intellectual property matters, individually and as a team.

When a client of yours is facing a white collar, regulatory, professional licensing or a complex parallel proceeding, commercial or intellectual property matter, we're the call.

Respectfully,

Kris Costello
